MOKELUMNE PROJECT TO START

HALL RESIGNS AS ATTORNEY

Utility District Furthers Its Appraisal on Properties Of East Bay Water Co

The directors of the East Bay
Municipal Utility district last night adopted a resolution calling for bids on July 20 for the construction of the Lancha Plana dam and the Mokelumne aqueduct, under the Keeler plan whereby these jobs
may be done under private contract.

Several big construction concerns suggested that the work might be done cheaper under the bidding system, and last night's meeting agreed to try for bids, especially as some of the lands involved in the construction of the dam will be available to the district under the Keeler plan, which offered them as an added inducement.

POLICY ON VACATIONS.

The directors also outlined their policy concerning vacations and sick leaves for employees, who will be entitled to a 15-day vacation with pay every year, and a certain amount of sick leave when necessary, according to service. Final action, however, was delayed pending further discussion and a rewording of the ordinance.

The resignation of D. J. Hall of Richmond as special attorney for the district was accepted.

A resolution was adopted, asking the governor to approve the legislative bills clarifying the utility district law, validating the organiza-

Pullmans Play Oakland Today

With the old standbys as a battery, the Pullman shops club expects to take the game with the Del Monte
No. 6 club of Oakland this afternoon at First street park even though the boys from the visiting city are reputed to be above average in bush league ball. This battery is Kamh, Lombardi, who have worked together for so long and to such good advantage. The reserve pullman battery will be Lund, McCarron and McElroy.

The Pullmans will meet Concord
at First street on Sunday, May 21.

Church Discusses Timely Questions

Rev. C. G. Lindemann of Wesley Methodist Episcopal church will discuss two very interesting themes on Sunday. At the morning service the topic will be "Life's Portrait Gallery" and at the evening service the topic will be "The Opposing Tides." Both subjects deal with some very vital every-day matter of life. The increased attendance at both morning and evening services during the past weeks shows that the public is vitally interested in the discussion of the live questions of the day.

HOTEL GROUPS TO MEET DAILY

The executive committee of the community hotel campaign held the first of a series of daily meetings yesterday at which time all details were completed and everything placed in readiness for the committee to start on its preliminary work at the next meeting tomorrow noon. Luncheon meetings will be held every day next week so as to complete the advance program of the committee at the earliest possible date well in ahead of the opening of the stock sales week opens with a dinner on Monday evening, June 1st. H. A.
Johnston, chairman of the executive committee, spoke enthusiastically of the prospects of success. "The result of this campaign is going to surprise some people and be a real indication of what we can do," said Johnston.

The large sales organization is rapidly nearing completion. Group 7 of which S. S. Clark is manager reported its quota filled by the following men: Ivan T. Conn, A. E.
Furrer, Will Richards, E. P. Vaughn,
Jos. Reed Clyde Baker, W. D. Rhin,
Frank Gonan and Herbert Porter. W.
W. Scott, manager of group 5, also completed his group yesterday with these men: J. A. Long, W. Mayer,
Robert N. Travers, L. G. Ely, C. H.
Hunt, A. W. Mueller, J. H. Misner, Willard Poake, and Dan Reardon.

The leaders of the organization have reported a general willingness on the part of the men approached to act in the capacity suggested and every indication points to little difficulty in completing the organization of 152 men, there being over 100 men already signed up in various positions on the campaign. This will undoubtedly be one of the greatest organizations for civic accomplishment ever formed in Richmond.

Chas. B. Hamilton, lessee of the hotel, is expected in Richmond the latter part of this week to meet with the leaders of the campaign and has also promised to be present at the opening meeting on June 1st so as to meet every salesman on the organization and give them full information about his plan of operation and the possibilities of a hotel in Richmond.

ORINDA P. T. A. HAS PROGRAM

On Monday, May 11, the Orinda Parent-Teacher association entertained the Mount Diablo Federation at the Orinda Union school auditorium. Eight districts were well represented and a splendid program was given by the children of the school. Miss Dorothy Kendall, Miss Irene Ahlquist and Miss Wauka Carlson each rendered a piano solo, so creditably done it makes Orinda realize three future artists are here.
Mrs. M. Ferriter, of Berkeley, for many years closely connected with child welfare work and experienced in the raising and guiding of children, gave a splendid talk on that subject, and stressed the urgent call of proper home environment to bring them up to be men and women to make the world better to live in.

More teachers of Mrs. Ferriter's ability are needed. There are wonderful mothers these days, and a few seeds from the minds of such teachers, sown in such fertile soil will help mothers, as they all dream of the time when they can point with pride to the temple of the world as their own creation.

Mr. Woodbury gave a very interesting talk on his boyhood days with Ralph Waldo Emerson and his close friendship with Luther Burbank. To those who constantly read and love the great American philosopher, it was thrilling to hear one who knew him well speak personally of him. Mr. Woodbury's talk was a unique treat.

An election was held for president of the Federation, and Mrs.
Timothy Kendall, of Orinda, was elected to that office. No better official could have been chosen, as Mrs. Kendall is highly capable, having been a teacher at Orinda where she also held important offices in the various organizations of the section. She is well fitted by experience for this new position.

Orinda congratulates her and the Federation. The Federated Clubs will meet the second Monday of every other month.

to the instructor J. W. Deeming for the way in which the events were pulled off. Deeming has been giving two mornings a week to the San Pablo school and has worked wonders with the boys and girls that have come under his supervision.
He is very popular with the pupils of the school, and physical education has become a household word in San Pablo.

Air-Cooled Motor Developed for U. S. Navy
Called Greatest Advance in Aviation Since War

The Cyclone or P-1 type of motor, developed exclusively for the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy Department, was photographed at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, D. C., where it was to be tried out officially. It is a radial motor of nine cylinders developing 450 horse-power and resembles the rotary motors used in pursuit planes during the war. The cylinders differ from those of the rotary motors in not revolving with the propeller, have a 6-inch bore and a 6 1/2 inch stroke. It is expected that this motor will play an important part in the commercialization of aviation for both passenger and freight transportation.

that the United States is desirous of settlements.

The debt commission hopes to find this enormous total in accordance with the terms of the British defense loan settlement which already has served as a model for agreements covering $1,749,458,412 owed by Great Britain, gary.

SHOOT TO KILL IS COMMAND TO S.F. POLICE

Hall's Pal, Now The 'Lone Wolf,' Believed to Have Broken
Through at Capital

SEEN ON MARKET STREET

San Quentin Fugitive Also Reported Seen Twice in Oakland Yesterday

(By Universal Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—The hunt for Joseph Tanko, plotted to San Francisco late yesterday.

With the police of the bay city warned by numerous telephone messages that Tanko is somewhere in San Francisco or Oakland, and with the Sacramento searchers up against a blank wall in their hunt for the missing desperado, it was accepted by the local police as highly probable that Tanko had broken through the cordon in the north and reached the bay district.

Chief of Police O'Brien issued a warning late yesterday afternoon to every San Francisco station.

"Tanko is believed to be in San Francisco," O'Brien declared. "Order every patrolman to be on guard and to shoot to kill at the first sign of trouble."

TWICE REPORTED IN OAKLAND.

Cooperation was arranged with the East Bay police. Two reports that Tanko had been seen in Oakland were received during the day.
It is known that the escaped convict, whose pal, Floyd Hall, is now in jail in Sacramento, has friends in San Francisco. Tanko was believed to be making a desperate effort to reach these friends whom he could depend upon to conceal him until he could be spirited out of the State.

Tanko was on Market street near Montgomery at noon yesterday, according to a report given the police by a man named Everett, 1919 Myrtle avenue, Oakland. Everett said a man resembling Tanko asked him for a dime. Everett was taken to the harbor station, and positively identified a photo of Tanko as the man who had stopped him on the street.

A woman informed Patrolman John Bridgman that she saw a man answering to Tanko's description eating lunch in the particular lunch on Park near Bush street, at 1 o'clock. It was after the receipt of this information that Chief O'Brien issued his warning to all San Francisco stations.

"You fellows have gone as far as you'll ever go with me," Hall said laughingly at McShane, according to the police official, who was questioning the prisoner in an effort to get a record of his activities with Tanko.
Hall refused to give any more unpaid interviews to newspapermen
this afternoon. "I want fifty dollars an interview," he said to would be questioners.

that his patient is coming along very nicely, and that at present there is a fine chance of his recovery.

Lathrop has not fully regained consciousness yet, but he is semiconscious at times. He has not yet come to the realization of where he is or what has happened to him.

MISS HELEN KELLER'S MISSION

The public as a whole has been comparatively indifferent to the welfare of the blind simply because it has not understood the problem in its modern aspect. The world has moved, and no longer is blindness necessarily an economic handicap. That it actually in most cases continues to be an unwarranted handicap, is due to the limited equipment of those able to help the sufferers. The intelligent blind no longer should be forced to live the stunted lives of men of chairs and makers of brooms. The world can be opened to them, and the fortunate among those having vision hold the key to the locked door.

Miss Helen Keller's message to the citizens of Richmond must give them an appreciation of the great opportunity now unfolded. Herself blind, she has gained vision; deaf, she receives directly the thought of the great minds of the earth; she was mute, but she speaks with heartfelt eloquence for those with a great misfortune to overcome. She has been regarded as the outcome of a miracle; she really is the illustration of a great mind given to the world through special education.

The present work of Miss Keller is to spread the tiding of the American Foundation of the Blind. That is the national agency through which may be accomplished the standardization of education, the opening of new employments, the qualifying of teachers, the publication of embossed books, the study of preventive methods and other means of placing this and succeeding generations of blind on a higher, better plane.

THE COMMUNITY HOTEL

Richmond is soon to undertake the task of providing for a new and distinctive hotel which will call for all of her energy and will to win. She is called upon to prove to the outside world that she has the determination to build a city worthy of the best.

There have been other campaigns to do things that were sorely needed in Richmond. There have been drives to raise funds that were of vital necessity. None, however, has had a more immediate or pressing demand than this campaign. One hundred and fifty business and professional men are organizing themselves and will donate their services in the effort to sell stock in a great civic investment. The executive committee of the project which is composed of representative business men has worked out a plan of campaign to give Richmond a new hotel. Such questions as site, type of building, operator, and other fundamentals of the plan, have been decided upon after much deliberation and consultation of experts.

This is Richmond's opportunity. Such a hotel will prove to the world the abiding faith that the residents of Richmond have in their city. It will be the promise of a greater and more prosperous Richmond in the years to come. If Richmond is to be built on the lines of a great city, the people who live here must do it. We have been waiting too long for outsiders to come and do it for us. It is time to bestir ourselves.

A RECORD OF SERVICE

The United States consumes more oil and gasoline than all the rest of the world combined. At present more than twice as much gasoline is being extracted from a barrel of crude oil than was obtained 10 years ago. If new inventions and refining processes had not been applied in the petroleum industry, it would have been necessary to secure twice as much crude oil as is now being produced. Low gasoline prices are in large measure the result of inventions and discoveries of recent years.

The old industry has kept pace with the demand for oil. In good times and bad, it has supplied kerosene, gasoline and oils at reasonable prices to the public without delay, inconvenience or trouble, all of this in the midst of tremendous development of the business. Petroleum is at present produced, refined and marketed with an economy and efficiency never before equaled in the history of industry.

FOREST FIRE PREVENTION

American Forest week should annually become one of the most important events in each of our states. This nation's future depends upon an everlasting supply of timber.

For four years the United States Forest Service has directed observance of Forest Protection Week. This year it felt that the best interests of forestry would be served by transferring observance of the week to non-governmental agencies. As a result, various organizations all over the United States are taking an interest in the matter. Lumber manufacturers associations have rendered particular assistance.

The American public is one of the greatest offenders in forest destruction because of its carelessness with fire. If it can be awakened to its responsibility as the best guardian of its own forest resources, the first big step will have been taken in reforestation, as the young trees will have a chance to grow without being blighted by the thousands of forest fires which this nation now has annually.

Neck Ribbons are Weighing Heavily on the Fashion of the Future.

Way into Fashion Again.

NO woman who can remember the fashions of the first decade of this century need be told of the neck ribbon as it was known at that time. Neck ribbons were worn forever. What between the neck and the shoulders, the ribbons were kept pretty busy. First they were worn without any pretension, right around the neck. Then they were pulled up to the shoulders and the ribbon at the back of the neck touched the neck. The ribbon was then around around to the front and tied in the front of the dress at the moment was considered smart.

After that nothing came into fashion and we went to great pains to sew nothing into our neck ribbons. Always of course the ribbons were pulled down in front and in order to keep it in place a trim of gold braid or silver braid after it was tied. We wore these ribbons as a sort of trash to the shirt waist which was over a woman's every day dress. These ribbons now are back into fashion again, and

WISE AND OTHERWISE

By MARY MARSHALL

THEN AND NOW

FOR the diversion of an hour or so, let us look at some old columns of a magazine that published accounts of women's fashions. There may be some old suit which in your at first is not so to the public mind and hence over the old family magazine for the years around 1850 and 1860.

A dress of the earlier date, which is described as of the Midway era, is of dark green cloth covered with embroidery and lace, and displaying the shape of the wearer to the greatest perfection. Long white gloves are worn with it and a gray beaver hat mounted with a twisted ostrich feather. Thus, the writer explains, is the "bustle" period. The same reviewer states that "bustle" heroes are most reprehensible for promiscuity.

And in a fashion review of 1862 we read: "Not a woman of the slightest pretensions to fashion nowadays who can clap her hands above her head."

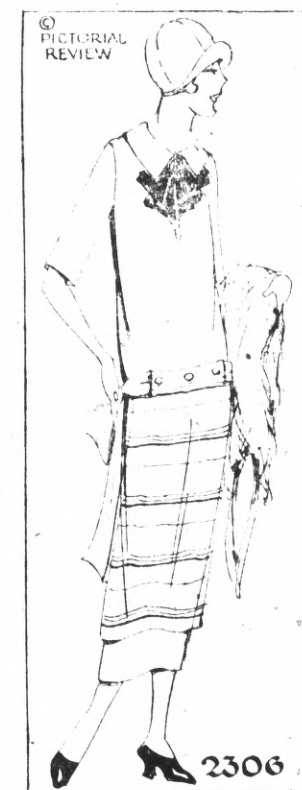

A NEW EGG SALAD

Melt a little butter in a small frying pan and break into it two eggs and cook gently until it thickens, stirring all the time. When evenly thickened, but not over done turn it into a bowl and add two ounces of cream cheese. Stir together until well blended and then set in the refrigerator to cool. Arrange beds of lettuce and place dabs of the egg and cheese mixture on each with slices of cold cooked beef for garnishing.

SOME VEGETABLE MIXTURES
Some housewives serve boiled buttered beets with baked onions. Peas and carrots are as usual as corn and beans. Some cooks cook cabbage and onions together. Tomatoes

IN BROWN SATIN

One of the new ways that Paris has of treating the time-trimmed frock is illustrated in this model in brown satin. The tunic is tucked and finished with a band across the front, the band being buttoned onto the dress. Sash ends are added at the sides, then tied in a bow at the back. A turn-down collar trims the round neck. Either long or short sleeves may be worn with the design. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards 35-inch material.

The Bread and Butter Wife

by Violet Dare

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

SALLY LEE, an attractive young public stenographer, returns to work after marriage. But Babetta, a former friend, is not so soon as she gets a job in a fashionable hotel in Atlantic City.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT
XXII—STEPPING OUT

TO Sally who had never gone to any sort of party unaccompanied it seemed strange for the two girls to start out alone. But Babetta seemed to accept it quite as a matter of course. "Now don't stand around waiting for me," she said. "I'll be here in ten minutes."

VIOLET DARE

They'll all be nice fellows anyhow, members of the Lodge that's having a convention here. Any man with a badge on is all right; better be careful of anyone else. They're selling tickets tonight to outsiders."

The vast ballroom, bigger than any Sally had ever seen before, was decorated with Japanese lanterns and the walls were hung with many-colored lanterns. The men in their colorful uniforms looked like foreign dignitaries. Sally's heart pounded with excitement as the orchestra burst into a provocative melody, and she looked around at the unusual scene.

"They're going to start their exhibition and drill in a minute," Babetta said, tugging at Sally's arm. "Let's go upstairs and sit in a box where we can see. Then we can pick out the good-looking fellows, and if we're in luck their wives won't be here and we can enjoy ourselves."

Sally restrained herself from saying "Oh Babetta!" reproachfully. She must get over this habit of displaying her own conduct for her little but misunderstandings and unhappiness.

She watched interestedly while the columns of men below marched through intricate figures and was a little sorry when they stopped and everyone rushed for the ballroom floor where dancing was soon to begin.

Babetta sidled her way over toward a group of men, got a chair for Sally and then started exclaiming audibly that she wished she could find another. One of them politely pushed one toward her but made no effort to continue the conversation.

A moment later a woman joined him and they danced away. Here and there Sally found in the crowd a man who reminded her of Tom. "He's got broader shoulders than that one," she decided, "and the ghost of a curl in his hair makes him better looking than that."

"Come out of it," Babetta remarked suddenly. "We're not getting over at all. Let's go find the fellows that gave me these tickets."

They pushed and jostled their way through the crowd—dressed in a sea of friends. It made Sally feel lonely and depressed here in the midst of merriment and laughter and a huge crowd to think that she hadn't a single friend. She couldn't stand it much longer. Just as soon as someone asked Babetta to dance, she would steal away out on the pier.

A few minutes later she seized her chance. Babetta, despairing of finding her cavalier, danced away with the owner of a hot-dog concession. A large blond man with whom she had often swapped comments on the weather as she passed his stand.

Sally stole out on the pier, grateful for the cool freshness of the salt air, glorying in being alone where there was no one to witness her escapade.

Was it for this, she wondered, that she had been torn away from the safety of constant likings and misunderstandings with the one she loved? Was there nothing to choose between being browbeaten and being lonely?

As though in answer to her unspoken question, there were footsteps in the darkness.

"Sally, is it really you? I have been looking everywhere for you. Two fairly cold the city in order to find you."

Forgotten was her fear and distrust of Edna Banc in her happiness and relief at having a friendly voice.

"Now, perhaps, I can have that dance you promised me."

"Oh where did you come from?" Sally asked, joy making for voice. "And why?"

"I came from nowhere," he said jokingly. "That's wherever you are not. And perhaps I came to collect that thirty dollars you owe me. You can't ever tell, I think, though, that I came with no ulterior motive except a desire to see you."

He took Sally's hands in his and gazing down at her eyes glistening in the dusky light.

"Care for me a little, my dear, for I am beginning to like you a lot."

It was comforting to be admired—not to be alone any more—and Sally bent to the wind of chance, swallowed her distrust of him and said "Yes—I like you."

A moment later Babetta appeared in the door and exclaimed loudly, "Look at her! And I tried to tell her how to pick 'em!"

Obviously Sally had risen in her estimation. But Jane sensing that her presence clashed, turned to Sally and said, "New perhaps I can have that dance I was promised long ago."

Fill the center with onion, 1-2 cup of grated cheese, pepper and salt, and sage. Cover with plenty of potatoes, and bake to a nice brown. This must be eaten very hot, or the cheese will harden.

Creamed Chicken with Curry of Rice: Melt one-fourth a cup of butter; cook in it one-fourth a cup of flour and half a teaspoonful each of salt and paprika. When cooked a little, gradually stir in 2 cups of milk. Let cook, stirring constantly until the mixture boils, then add a pint, well pressed down, of chicken meat cut in small cubes. Let stand over hot water to become very hot. Cook an onion cut in halves in three tablespoons of butter, then add three tablespoons of curry powder, and when blended with the butter gradually stir in 1-2 cups milk. Have ready half a cup of rice, heated to the boiling point in a quart of cold water, drained and rinsed, add this to the milk and curry mixture with a teaspoon of salt; let cook over hot water until the rice is tender and the liquid absorbed. Remove the onions and add a tablespoon of butter and a dash of pepper and place on platter; turn the creamed chicken into the center of the dish.

Mothers and Daughters Hold Banquet

One of the most delightful events in the annals of the First Presbyterian church for a long time was the mothers' and daughters' banquet given at the church Friday night. More than one hundred were present and the mothers were brought closer to their daughters and the daughters were drawn nearer to their mothers.

Under the direction of Mrs. B. X. Tucker, the following program was rendered during the wonderful repast:

Vocal selections—"Mother Machree" and "A Memory"—Miss Roberta Baird accompanied by Miss Marion Millers.

Toast—"To Mother," Miss Leota Sloan.

Reading—"Mother's Day" (Edgar Guest)—Miss Meta Leard.

Toast—"A Daughter's Best Gift"—Miss Sara Spires.

Vocal solo—"Angels"—Miss Ida Engleking accompanied by Miss Mildred Spires.

Miss Lucy M. Robinson of Berkeley was the speaker of the evening and her topic was, "Girlhood Ideals." Seven ideals characterizing the growing girl were cited in the talk as follows:

Love of beauty, joy, honor, courtesy, hospitality, friendship and service. That all these ideals, if followed, are a part of right thinking, was stressed by Miss Robinson. She concluded her talk by declaring that love is the greatest thing in the world; and that a plea with the girls to strive for their ideals, for they will be amply repaid through life.

Credit for the lovely dinner, an example of the sort of cooking for which the Presbyterian ladies have earned fame, goes to Mrs. J. S. Spires, as manager, assisted by Madam W. W. Giberson, J. H. Plate, and A. L. Rector. Eleven men of the church, under the supervision of Mrs. J. S. Walquest, served the Sunday school begins at 10:00 o'clock. Subject of lesson—"Saul Becomes a Christian." Golden Text, "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature." 2 Cor. 5:17. Saul experiences a complete change of heart and life. His name is changed from Saul to Paul. Paul had a vision of Jesus Christ, his eyes were opened. He realized his wrong doing, and when he learned his duty from the Master he began at once to do service for Him. The lesson we learn is to go and do likewise. At the 11 o'clock service the sermon by the pastor will be on the subject, "The Divine Plan." All spiritual work and progress should be according to divine direction. The spirit of humility, be not constant in prayer, sets forth the proper attitude to receive strength that ye may abound in faith and love. That ye might be filled with all the fullness of God. God's plan can be relied upon, if we adopt it. There is nothing better, hence it is a great privilege and duty to adopt this plan to meet the greatest triumph in life.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Leonora Bewlay, a vivacious English girl, is decidedly a modern young woman. She had even an exuberance during the war, and latterly, amused herself as she sees fit. She travels, and is more or less exposed to society—which she loathes—simply because there has been nothing more exciting to do. She confides to her chum, Susan Murray, who has recently married a clergyman, that she is finished with the sedentary life to which she had become accustomed.

"I am of age. I have enough money to live upon. I'm going to leave a fling."

Leonora loves to shock the conventional-minded gentry. About this time she meets Richard Valoran, a talented musician.

CHAPTER II

Whether the assumption that artists above all men need a woman be true or not, they are pretty sure to get one. Their passion for beauty proves, paradoxically, their inspiration and their downfall, causing their own hearts to become their worst deceivers. Richard Valoran did not escape the consequences of his temperament though he might wrestle with its possession, and curse it vehemently, a dozen times a day. While one tossed him to the skies, the other dragged him back, down into the mud. This happened in 1914. Like thousands of other young men he made that year, almost simultaneously, the greatest sacrifice and the greatest mistake that man, perhaps, can make. The long years of a singer's training, the grudging, which even a born genius can not escape, were finished—his bask in a life of fashion and to batten upon his earnings.

Leo's previous "fling" had been merely sign-posts pointing to this reunion, aimless in themselves, though pleasant enough. As the day drew near, her mind grew more reminiscent. The London streets faded into rows of huts connected by muddy roads. Once more she was back among the camaraderie of the women's armies, working side by side with the men of the regiments to which they were attached. Once more she and Valoran spent their free time in long tramps beside the sea, scrambling over cliffs, picnics in secluded dells. Once more they discussed wildly all the stupendous problems of the universe. Once more, lying on his back in a woodland glade, he sang to her, softly, passionately, in the voice whose beauty seemed to have gathered together the far-off, infinite beauty of the stars, all the perfumed beauty of the flowers, and to have breathed them forth again in song.

Reminiscence merged into anticipation, until they also became one.

As the train roared through the Kent hopfields she was oblivious of the ranks of sticks with young green clinging round their base. A tiny disturbing thought had thrust up its head: would Val have changed? Judging by his letters, he had not. But sometimes, after a lapse of time, renewed intercourse with people proved horribly disappointing.

At Dover she awoke from her reflections with a fresh throb of delight at sight of the water sparkling in the sunshine. Then Calais, its bustle, its lively greeting from the crowd of porters in their cheery blue pinaflores. Leo forgot to bid her new companion farewell. The "bee-autiful place" was nearer now—on the same continent.

Gabbled to by one porter, gesticulated by another, she was pushed first into the arms of an official, then whirled into those of the next, until all formalities of passport and custom were completed. Free at last, she dashed into the entrance hall, and there she nearly fell on the chest of a tall figure hurrying to meet her.

"Val!" she cried. And again, "Val! Val!"

Her hands were clasped in his, in a grip that almost hurt; his eyes glowed down into hers; but he seemed bereft of speech. When his lips opened, they could only stammer. Leo collected herself first, and her words poured forth incoherently.

"You haven't got fat like singers do. Thank God! Oh! Isn't it glorious?—Meeting again! I mean. Oh, Val! Val! Isn't it—Isn't it—glorious?"

"Just the same. Just the same." Val was muttering the words to himself, still gripping her hands, devouring her with his shining eyes. "Leo! Leo! Old thing—I should just think it is—glorious!"

"We have three hours to wait," Val said with unusual exactitude. "You are coming to my hotel—breakfast—bath."

"Bath? Hotel?" she gasped vaguely. "What—why—what are you doing in a hotel, here?"

"Sleep in it, of course—duffer!" "Why? Where? Where have you come from? I thought—"

"Stop! For heaven's sake stop!" He took off his hat, and pushed back his dark hair, with a frown of bewilderment. "I came from—Where the dickens was I the day before yesterday? And yesterday? I arrived here sometime—in the morning—or the afternoon. No—oh, sometime. I know I was in bed here last night, and that's enough. Leo! You're just you! And here we are together again, at last!"

Val eyed the man vacantly for a moment. "Yes," he agreed vaguely; "yes." Then, with sudden inspiration, he stepped forward. "Clock-room!" he cried, with brisk originality. "Of course! Your things must go in the cloak-room. It's quite simple, really."

Val returned in a few minutes. He slipped his long fingers in the crook of Leo's arm, with the same old-time air of confidence, glancing down from the corner of his eye, with the little chuckling laugh that wrinkled up his nose. This was a quite unconscious trick of his, a dangerous trick that held a peculiar fascination. So characteristic and familiar did it seem, that she pressed his hand to her side.

"It's just as if we had never parted!" she cried, as they left the station. "Isn't it wonderful to meet like this! Exactly where we left off!"

"Where we left off? I never left off. You were always close, Leo—at my elbow. Whenever anything happened, my first instinct was to tell you. Which I did."

"I know. It was the same with me. I loved your letters. But I had just a wee fear that when we met, there might be—well—a slight difference of some kind."

"There was," he said decidedly. She glanced up, in quick anxiety, and met his laughing sidelong glance again.

"When we parted," he explained, "you kissed me good-by."

Leo stopped dead, regardless of the traffic in the road they happened to be crossing. "That can soon be rectified," she cried, raising her face.

But he looked for a moment, and a moment only, full into her eyes; then shook his head.

"We are holding up the traffic. Another time."

"You old fustigot!" Leo laughed, sprinkling his bent head. "You are not going to insist on tubbing me, too, I hope?"

He retaliated with a splash at her nose. "I'll begin upon the freckles—there!" A frantic struggle ensued, during which the door got slammed, and their clothes became decidedly wet. Val pinioned her arms at last, and sat down on the edge of the bath.

"A cigarette is indicated," he observed breathlessly.

"My water will get cold."

"More in the tap." He struck a match, lighted both their cigarettes, and looked again, without laughter, into her eyes.

"The blessed treat of having you to fuss over! If you only knew how sick I am of my beastly self!—of—of—" He broke off, frowning.

Leo looked at him quickly, surprised at the change, the bitterness, in his voice. She threw an arm around his shoulder, giving him a grip possessing more boyish affection than womanly tenderness. "Fuss away, then, dear old thing. I'm in the same boat."

"You!"

Throwing off her hat and coat, she nodded. "One does get fed up with one's self sometimes. So we'll fuss over each other for a month."

Val blew out a cloud of smoke without replying at once. He looked down at her bent head, as she unfasted her shoes. "And—afterward?" he asked softly.

"Won't it be worse still?"

She laughed gayly. "Never mind about the afterward. That always takes care of itself. Just glance at that fly on the ceiling, Val, while I hunt for a suspender. . . . There. Eyes front! All's well. Now I've undressed as far as I—dare. So will you please run away?"

He glanced at her slender white ankles, without offering to move. "I wonder," he mused, "what the afterward may bring?"

"A laurel crown for you and a seat in the stalls for me. I haven't heard you, yet, in opera. Some day you are going to sing to me—all to me, in a crowded house. You promised."

He looked up with a little smile. "Thank God for you, Leo!" he said with sudden fervor. Something of forlornness in his attitude, and the knowledge of the shackles which chafed so sorely, roused the girl's quick generous sympathy. She laid her hands lightly on his shoulders.

"Now, Val, dear—shall we rectify that—that greeting?"

He caught her round the waist and held her close, rubbing her hair with his free hand.

"Leo! Leo! You are just the same—the my—elusive aprita. . . . I wonder when you will—if ever you will—"

"What?" Your eyes are more Irish blue than ever, Val. But they look tired. What were you going to say?"

"Oh—nothing. You are just the best pal in the world. That's all." He stood up; but she still held him by the arms. Almost hurriedly, he bent down and kissed her on the lips. Then he opened the door so precipitately that, in the passage outside, he collided with the grand madame from the bureau, who was talking to a maid near the bathroom door.

WALNUT CREEK FLOWER PRIZE WON BY ORINDA

Orinda won second prize at the big Flower Show held at Walnut Creek. It was a very beautiful exhibition and the entries were all so good, the judges had a difficult time placing the prizes. The show compared favorably with any such exhibition in big cities.

The Orinda Improvement Club held a special meeting last Monday evening at the Auditorium to discuss the telephone question. It was decided that a switchboard at Orinda would not be advisable at this time.

The Orinda Fire Department will hold their big dance Saturday evening, May 16 at the new Auditorium. Good music! All are invited to attend and help the good cause. Fires stopped here in dry season protect other sections. Couples admission $1.00. All money goes to the Fire Fund to help keep up their fine equipment, so it is a public service you help by your attendance.

Orinda P. T. A. held a meeting last Friday and at election all officers were retained for the ensuing year.

Dr. Calvin Camp, of San Pablo, and friends visited Mrs. W. T. Wheeler this week.

A regular dance will be held every third Saturday evening throughout the Summer at the new Auditorium at Orinda. Come and get acquainted.

Miss Woodin, teacher of the Orinda Union School, has planned to have the graduating exercises this year held at Lake Orinda, where a picnic-luncheon will be served. Miss Irene Ahlquist will have the distinction of being the first pupil to graduate at the Orinda Union School. A tablet will be purchased and framed, and she will be the first to sign it.

Much hay was ruined here in the recent rains, but the owners are taking it bravely, and saying, "Well, its good for the wheat."

Tells Strange Tale Automobile Theft

Joe Krc of 1018 Jefferson street, Emeryville, reported to local police last night that while he was sitting in the Plaza cafe, on San Pablo avenue in Oakland he was accosted by an intoxicated man, who at the point of a gun forced him to get into a car and drive to the Richmond San Rafael ferry. There Krc was forced to purchase a ticket across the bay.

Krc stated that the car in which they were riding was not known to him, and that when they were driving toward Richmond the gunman kept his revolver trained on all passing policemen. The escape was made when Krc took his capturer by surprise and struck him in the face and ran to safety.

When the police arrived at the ferry slip the boat was well across the bay. They immediately notified San Rafael authorities; however, and they rushed to the landing on the Point San Quentin side, but when the boat docked no trace of the man was found.

Krc's description of the man was that he was about 6 feet in height, weighing about 190, having a red face and wearing glasses.

HUDSON-ESSEX MAKES RECORD IN PRODUCTION

The biggest month's production of six cylinder cars in the history of the industry was scored in April by the Hudson-Essex organization, according to officials, who announced that 24,000 Hudson and Essex cars were made and shipped. Even this production, according to word received by J. P. Strom, dealer for Hudson and Essex in this city, was far from sufficient to meet the enormous demand which has developed all over the country. Strom said that he could use 50 per cent more cars than are coming to him, and that he is doing everything in his power to obtain cars for immediate delivery.

"Our business has been most active all spring," he said, "but it was still further increased when the price on Hudson Super-Six cars was reduced to the lowest point in the history of these cars. The public knows of the Hudson Super-Six as one of the world's fine cars; and this price reduction made it also a car with a most moderate price. The Super-Six coach now sell at less than half as much as the Hudson open cars of

Sources of Income

Any keen business investor will be glad to be offered an investment embodying a sound source of income, whether it be a store, industry, bank or hotel. The alert-minded investor is aware of the source of patronage for Richmond's New Hotel. This is one of the reasons why the Executive Committee comprising many of Richmond's business and professional men, are conducting this great community enterprise. The benefits to the City, though indirect, are also equally important. Here are some of the sources of income:

1. MOTOR TOURISTS: Hundreds of tourists cars pass by or through Richmond daily on the automobile highways. With the development of our Automobile ferry service, many of these tourists may be induced to stop in Richmond. A great many automobile tourists prefer to stop at modern hotels in the out-skirts of great cities and avoid driving their machines into city traffic. Lower rates are available here for the type of service, than in the hotels in the larger centers. Those tourists could make their headquarters at Richmond's modern Hotel, leaving their machines here while they did their sight-seeing in San Francisco.

2. INDUSTRIES: Richmond is rapidly becoming a great industrial center. These industries will bring many executives of corporations and hundreds of individuals having business relations with these industries, who must be furnished with adequate attractive hotel accommodations.

3. COMMERCE AND FOREIGN SHIPING: Richmond is going to be a prominent Sea-Port, through which passes world's commerce in shipping. This will result in many visitors in connection with our Port activities who will stop in our City.

4. PERMANENT GUESTS: There are a number of people who prefer to live permanently at a modern hotel. This will be a source of assured income.

5. CONFERENCES: With our varied industries, many industrial and trade conferences may be held which will bring many delegates to our New Hotel.

6. AS A CIVIC CENTER: The people of Richmond will use the hotel as a civic center, a place for social gatherings and business conferences.

The Hotel will be operated by experienced Hotel Chain Operators. They will route business from other cities to Richmond.

Remember! These operators can make no money for themselves before the dividends on the preferred stock are paid.

Our Hotel should have 400 stockholders, each of whom will be an advertising agent to direct tourists and business to our Hotel. This vast advertising force will create additional income for our Hotel.

MICKY WALKER STOPS COOPER IN ONE ROUND

By AL SANTORE

Staff Correspondent Universal Service

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Micky Walker, the world's welter weight champion, stopped Lefty Cooper of Minneapolis in 1 minute and 20 seconds of fighting in the first round of their scheduled ten round fight at Ewing field here today.

Walker dropped Cooper for an eight count after he sailed into the Minneapolis man and crushed him with a barrage of right and left hands to the body and head.

The referee, Larry McGrath of Los Angeles, droned eight.

Cooper arose an instantly rushed, fighting, but to his end.

He caught Walker a terrific left hand to the short ribs and Walker's face was blank and the smile of confidence that he carried when he stepped into the ring.

Stung, the champion, cocked his right hand, let fly, and with a series of little short, and sharp wallops put Cooper flat on his side. Cooper arose to his knees, but overstayed the count.

"Eight-Nine and out," snuggled the referee. And he waved Cooper to his corner.

A mild protest accompanied McGrath's decision, but that official was right on the job.

"I wasn't hurt," Cooper said in his dressing room after the fight. "I thought that I was getting up on time."

Speaking of his new champion's triumph, Kearns said, "A human buzz saw. Dempsey doesn't do his work any better."

The fighters were matched physically only; Walker weighed 153 pounds; Cooper 154.

Walker and Kearns, Teddy Hayes and Billy Bloxham, his trainers, will leave for the East early next week to prepare Walker for his fight with

Merchants, Firemen Return Game Set For Next Tuesday

Calling off a game on account of rain has never settled an argument thus far in history, nor has it settled the argument between the Firemen and the Merchants. The game was scheduled on last Tuesday, but rain-fall sapped the ambition of both contestants so it was called off. But everything will be settled with finality next Tuesday morning weather permitting.

Chief Cooper, manager of the Firemen, is still keeping his lineup and the cast of characters on said lineup well under cover for some unknown and unsuspected reason and declares that it will remain a secret in his mind until the time for the calling of the game.

Eddie Hill, manager of the Merchants, has an air of bravado and it was only two weeks ago that he announced his lineup. This last is composed of some of the most prominent business men and insurance agents in the city of Richmond, besides a couple of attorneys of the highest caliber, so with these combined forces and long experience in such times, the Merchants figure they will have little trouble in taking the game one way or another.

BREAKS ARM IN FALL

As a result of falling off an eight foot lumber pile yesterday, Manuel Tondo, a Santa Fe employee, broke both arms. First aid was administered at the Abbott Emergency hospital.

The middleweight champion Harry Greb.

Kearns predicted that Walker will win by a knockout.

Approximately 20,000 persons saw today's fight—what there was of it. The preliminaries, featured by Spug Meyers knockout over Paddy Mills in the sixth round, resulted as follows:

Jimmy Barry decision over Joe French; Tuffy Wing decision over Charley Glaser; Eddie Roberts decision over Harry Galfund; Spug Meyers knockout over Paddy Mills.

FLYING EBONY, WITH SANDE UP, DERBY VICTOR

By LAMON RUNYON

Staff Correspondent Universal Service

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16. Never a handy guy like Sande.

Riding as if he was hurrying home ahead of the fast oncoming storm that broke soon after he finished, Earl Sande, the master horseman of these times drove Flying Ebony to victory in the Kentucky Derby this afternoon. Captain Hal, one of the hopes of Kentucky in the big stake, was second, a length and a half away, a nose ahead of Son of John, while Garland's Single Foot was fourth.

The rest of the field of twenty horses supposed to be the best three-year-olds in the land, were scattered back along the home stretch like bright backed bugs crawling along a sticky surface.

Flying Ebony, a coal black colt, belongs to Gifford A. Cochran, the carpet millionaire from Tarrytown, whose Coventry won the Preakness at Pimlico a short time ago.

The writer was one of a party that met Cochran wandering disconsolately along a dusty road near Lexington Thursday.

"What do you think of your horse in the Derby?" Cochran was asked. "I don't think much of it," replied Cochran moodily. "I haven't got a jockey. I thought Kummer would ride for me, but he's wanted in New York to ride a stake."

For a man of all his wealth he was slightly depressed. "My kingdom for a ride," he might have been paraphrasing.

That same day Earl Sande arrived in Louisville seeking a mount in the Derby which he won on Zev two years ago. He was originally scheduled to ride Borderland, but that horse was withdrawn.

St. Edmund's Team Forfeits Game in Volleyball League

Y. M. C. A. VOLLEYBALL LEAGUE

Y. M. C. A.	W.	L.	P.
Wanderers	10	1	509
Christians	10	2	873
Baptist	9	2	318
Wesley	5	7	419
Presbyterian	5	7	419
St. Edmunds	3	9	279
Lutheran	2	10	189

When a team in any league, for reasons unknown to anybody, forfeits three games in a season, they deserve to wind up at the bottom of the column. Thus with St. Edmunds in the Y. M. C. A. volleyball league. Since the league opened this season they have let a trio of games go to their opponents without a struggle. The last was to the Christians who got a game to their credit without even doing their suits.

Even the Lutherans who grace the very lowest portion of the cellar have been fighting like bull dogs the entire season, and nothing daunted by their repeated losses always come back for more and give the ones they are bucking the knowledge they have been in a game. They lost last night to the Baptists in three tough games, dropping the last two, 15 to 12 and 15 to 13, and taking the first 15 to 6.

This victory boosted the Baptists up to fourth place. Although they are tied with the Wesleys and Presbyterians they are the most rightful possessors as they were the only one of the teams who won last night. The Baptists were formerly in the cellar, but by sheer playing ability they have crawled out.

In the other games last night the Wanderers took the Wesleys down the line for two straight games, 15 to 11 and 15 to 4. The Y. M. C. A. also had a comparatively easy time in walking away with a pair of games from the Presbyterians, 15 to 14 and 15 to 10.

Great Five Act Vaudeville Show With "The Beauty Prize" Special Feature Film at The California

A great five act vaudeville road show, headed by Moore, Edythe and Schultz "The Ameri-Span Stars", comes to the California Theatre today, in conjunction with the screen feature "The Beauty Prize", featuring Viola Dana.

Giving the five act aggregation a whirlwind start are Gold and Goldie, a colored duo, who start right in with a snappy song and dance then offer a routine of musical numbers using Piano, Saxophone and Claironet finishing with a lively jazz number.

Seven feet of comicality is Larry Lamont who with his sister Dolly offer a melange of comedy, song and eccentric dance steps. Broad burlesque is their feature and everything they do it of a humorous nature.

Moore, Edythe and Schultz "The Ameri-Span Stars" are a trio of Eastern performers with a splendid record of successes in the production field of Broadway. There is a prettily staged and executed dance offering with dainty costumes and plenty of talent.

Baldwin Leahy and Archer with a comedy singing routine and excellently balanced voices are always prime favorites. The very latest song hits and several specially written numbers will be included in their selections.

"The Unexpected," with Bassett and Bailey as the principals, is an acrobatic offering in which the female portion of the act indulges in the more arduous feats. They have something new in balancing stunts for your approval.

ON THE SCREEN

Beauty and comedy are the pre-dominant features of Viola Dana's new Metro-Goldwyn picture, "The Beauty Prize."

Pat O'Malley appears opposite the star. Others in the cast include Edward Connelly, Eddie Phillips, Joan Standing, and Edith Yorke. Lloyd Ingraham was the director, while Winifred Dunn did the continuity and John Arnold was the photographer.

Other features on the same program include "Monkey Business," an Earl Hurd comedy; "Kinograms," Carl Richard's California Orchestra; Larry Canelo, at the organ.

FIELD DAY POSTPONED

On account of wet grounds, the annual school field day that was scheduled for yesterday at the Pecos playground was postponed until Tuesday, according to D. L. Seawright, supervisor of the affair. There will be 800 participants in the events to be started at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

"Meanest Man" at Richmond Today

Splendid character delineation in a wide variety of roles marks the screen production of George M. Cohan's "The Meanest Man in the World," the first National picture which is being shown with an all-star cast at the Richmond theatre today.

Bert Lytell has the leading male role, that of Richard Clarke, the kindest-hearted lawyer in New York, trying to act like the meanest man in the world. Blanche Sweet portrays Jane Hudson, a country beauty, whose business woes are the concern of the hero. Bryant Washburn plays the part of New Stevens, the pal of Richard Clarke. Carl Stockdale, as Hiram Leeds as giving a convincing characterization of a small town money lender who really deserves to be called the world's meanest man, and Victor Potel has a most amusing comedy role. Helen Lynch is to be seen as a snappy stenographer, Lincoln Stedman as a typical Cohen office boy, and Ward Crane as a villain in his best style.

Other features on the same program include "Derby Day," an "Our Gang" comedy, and "Kinograms," built like a newspaper.

San Diego—Construction throughout this district during coming summer months expected to establish new record.

TUBERCULOSIS OVERCOME

Oakland, Calif.
April 28, 1925.
For about three years I suffered from a bad cough and some chest. I tried many doctors, all of whom pronounced my case "Tuberculosis." My spirit was exhausted and I showed no regular action. As I found no improvement from any of the treatments that I took, I decided to give the FONG WAN HERB a test, as a last resort.

After having drunk the herbs for four months, I was a well woman and had gained in weight. A year has elapsed since I began to take the FONG WAN HERB and on April 16, 1925, I feel today, I am still well and have no sign of my former complaint.

WAR VETERAN'S FUNERAL HELD

Every war veteran organization in Richmond participated in the funeral ceremonies to the memory of Judge C. H. McCausland, at the Wilson and Kratzer chapel at 2 p. m. at the San Pablo church at 3 p. m. and at Sunset View cemetery, the last resting place, yesterday.

Hosts of friends gathered to pay final tribute to the man they had learned to love and they and the veteran organizations contributed floral pieces that blanketed the casket. The ladies of the G. A. R. were in charge of the chapel services, there Chaplain Kittie R. Tyler, read the beautifully impressive flag service.

The honorary pall bearers were Henry Galvin, P. R. Gardner, J. Myers, and George Herrick, four surviving members of the Richmond post of G. A. R. The active pall bearers were also members of veteran organizations. They were: E. C. Grow, G. W. Washbaugh, C. H. Bradwash, J. H. Fitzpatrick, P. A. Heeger, and Thomas F. Neer.

Rev. H. A. Kern gave a fitting tribute at the San Pablo Baptist church. The pastor also told briefly of the life of the deceased.

A quartet, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wallbank, Mrs. H. A. Kern and Walter Wallbank gave two selections, "Sweet Peace, the Gift

Pullman Juniors To Play Barbers

Although they have lost their first two starts this season, the Junior Pullmans are still out to get somebody's goat. They are scheduled to cross bats with the Classic Barbers of Berkeley at the San Pablo ball park at 12:30 p. m. today (Sunday). For some time the Juniors have been endeavoring to get a game with the Richmond Keys, but for a while it looked like there was nothing doing, but Tex Brown has promised that if they take the game today they will have an opportunity of playing the Keys on next Sunday. Therefore the Juniors are out for the blood and large quantities of it. The Pullman lineup will probably be: Schmidt 2b; Press, ss; Tam, 1b; F. Glan 3b; Johnson c; Sherman, p; G. Glan cf; Chalmers rf; and Domingo, lf.

of God's Love" and "Lead Kindly Light." Miss Gladys McCausland, granddaughter of the deceased, played the accompaniment.

The closing chapter in the services was marked by services at Sunset View cemetery, the remains being laid at rest in the family plot. The last salute was given by a firing squad of the Spanish War Veterans and the Foreign War Veterans. The American Legion and the Daughters of Veterans were also represented in the ceremonies.

Abd-El-Krim's Tribesmen, 40,000 Strong, Attempting To Drive French and Spanish From Morocco

Abd-El-Krim's troop movements are taken to indicate a plan to drive the French, as well as the Spanish, from Morocco. As the French army in Morocco under Marshal Lyautey numbers only 40,000, the forces are about equal. Above are pictured some of the native Moroccan troops of the type now being directed by Abd-El-Krim.

DAVIS REPORTS PROGRESS

A progress report was submitted by Chief Engineer Arthur P. Davis, general manager, as follows:

"Within the last month the manager has fulfilled requests for many discussions of the water supply. Other engagements for the future show an interest in the water supply, due largely to the application of the East Bay Water Company for permit to issue securities for bringing in the lower Sacramento.

A large portion of the time of the manager and the office force has been occupied in the preparation of data and diagrams for meeting the said application, and the manager attended the hearing as listener and witness during the past week.

The field forces have continued actively upon the detail surveys and location of the proposed aqueduct and appurtenances and the office forces have continued work upon the plans for the same and the alternative estimates of cost.

A party has been organized to push the surveys in the vicinity of Lancha Plana dam on the railroad and tunnel to draw water from the reservoir. Field parties

Newport Beach Over half million pounds of sea food shipped out of city during 1924; 60 fishermen engaged in bringing in catch.

San Leandro Factory for manufacture of cement tile to be established on East Fourteenth street.

have also been engaged in tying the surveys to property lines to facilitate the acquisition of right-of-way.

RIGHT-OF-WAY AGENT

"George A. Woodland has been engaged as right-of-way agent and has undertaken the work of acquiring right-of-way where needed. The urgency of the aqueduct work has led to the concentration of forces upon the preparation of plans for this work, but the appraisal of the property of the East Bay Water Company has not been entirely neglected. This is still in progress upon the service reservoirs, pumping plants and pipe installation now in progress at Berkeley has been continued. The same work has been continued also upon the appraisal of large reservoirs and surface water supply."

MONETT MOTORS OWN CHEVROLETS

The Monett Motor Co. is the only automobile establishment in Richmond where everyone in the employ owns a car of the make sold by the company.

Every employee at the Monett Motor Co. owns a Chevrolet.

Monett stated yesterday that every salesman, every mechanic, bookkeeper, and even the janitor owns a Chevrolet making this establishment a 100 per cent Chevrolet concern. A striking fact is also noticeable that many mechanics at other garages show a decided preference for Chevrolets.
